Note: Total compensation includes annualized base salary, discretionary and performance-based bonus payouts, the grant-date fair value of new stock and option awards and other compensation. If relevant, other compensation includes severance payments. Equilar Inc., an executive compensation research firm in Redwood Shores, Calif., prepared the chart by looking at companies with more than $1 billion in revenues that filed proxies by Aug. 15.

Why do the majority of the top 25 paid men look like they got their headshots done at Walmart portrait studio? You guys really need your PR staff to hire better photographers for your executive portraits.

Eric Kelly Sep 29

what next? Filthy rich top boys getting all the gravy and the bottom of the scale do all the labour for them to get the big bucks.
get the lazy so call top boys to get to work and slave llike we do.
by the way, who is having a big christmas party this year. did you know that the big boys have christmas parties and they make the decision for bottom of the scale workers "no way we can't afford it."
big joke

If the list went to 200 million, then maybe I could have made it! Capitalism and corruption at its best!

Jeannie Flippin Sep 28

how come rich guys are always so homely?
